Steve Blair (left) and Alan Davidson of Hellas — both will play for Australia against Taiwan.

Hellas McKendry's first target

Len McKendry is back at Heidelberg United in time for the Bergers' clash with South Melbourne Hellas at Olympic Park on Sunday.

There's no love lost between McKendry and Hellas supreme John Margaritis. Both are ambitious, confident and cocky. Both say their outfit will win.

McKendry ended a 10-week stay with Victorian State League giant Croatia last Monday. Now he's back in the arena he loves most.

On recent form it will take a gladiatorial commitment by Heidelberg to reverse this year's trend which finds Hellas perched on top of the PSL tree staring down at its bitter rival in disdain.

BRAZILIANS TO VISIT!

Cruzeiro, still hailed as the greatest team seen in Australia, will play against Victoria at Olympic Park on Friday night, July 31.

Cruzeiro has visited Australia twice before.

Scheinflug hits out

Injuries and the Yzendoorn taping schemozzle have robbed the Socceroos of three players in the World Cup game against Taiwan in Adelaide tonight (Wednesday).

Yzendoorn is out along with injured Jim Tamey and Peter Sharne.

Tony Henderson will play sweeper, Alan Niven probably will be the left back and Eddie Krncevic is expected to be in Sharne's right-flank position.

Yzendoorn has been banned from the squad by the AFSF pending the result of an investigation into the taping affair.

Yzendoorn has explained that he taped Rudi Gutendorf's team talk before the game against New Zealand in Auckland on April 25 to add to his dossier of coaching information. He is a qualified senior coach and says he collects all the coaching information he can.

At first the AFSF's World Cup committee chairman Peter McCann accepted the explanation but on Monday morning coach Les Scheinflug was told that Yzendoorn was no longer in the squad.

Yzendoorn taped the Gutendorf talk on a tape recorder belonging to "Soccer Action" photographer and 3EA radio commentator Les Shorrock.

"Sydney Sun" writer David Jack borrowed the tape from Shorrock and ran it as an "expose"-type story more than a month later. The article raised the question of possible "sabotage" against the Australian team.

That suggestion is absurd. However, Yzendoorn has acknowledged that he was "stupid."

to let the tape fall into the hands of the Press. Scheinflug has hit out strongly at the Press. He said the Yzendoorn affair was blown out of proportion by "media power."

"It's time the Press wakes up to itself and supports the national team instead of trying to dig up ghosts," Scheinflug said.

"The national team and soccer in general needs the support of the public and the Press if we are going to progress, and especially if we are going to do well in the world youth championships in October."

The Australian team is likely to be:

New Zealand striker Steve Woodin, who has played twice against the Taiwanese in the World Cup, says their West German coach Herbert Stammiller had organised them well, especially in defence.

Stammiller has been coaching Taiwan since early March.

But soccer on the island is a minor sport, and there is no organised league competition. Rather than teams — mostly work teams — arrange matches among themselves when it suits them.

Australian coach Les Scheinflug will, as promised, use Steve Blair and the other two young players, Robert Wheatley and David Mitchell, tonight.

Nelinho

Victorian Soccer Federation chairman Michael Weinstein negotiated Cruzeiro's visit in July with the club's general manager, George Guttmann, during the Hellas v Sydney Olympic game at Middle Park last Sunday.

In 1973 Cruzeiro beat Victoria 2-1 and Sydney City 3-2. The Hakoah team featured guest players Antoniades of Greece and Peter Osgood of England.

The game will cost the VSF a total of $60,000 in air fares, accommodation and match fee, but the Brazilian soccer magic is likely to draw a huge crowd and thus result in a healthy profit.

Cruzeiro's team includes the former captain of Chile Elias Figueroa, who twice has been voted American Footballer of the Year.

Figueroa played for Chile against Australia in their scoreless draw in the 1974 World Cup finals in West Germany.

But the real star of this Cruzeiro team is the Brazilian international Nelinho who scored in Brazil's 3-1 victory over Poland and also played in the third-place play-off against Italy in the 1978 World Cup in Argentina.

Taiwan knows us

The Taiwan team that will meet Australia in their World Cup match in Adelaide tonight (Wednesday) includes at least six players who met the Socceroos in Taipei in late 1979.

Australia won that game 2-0 with goals by Tommy Cumming in the 43rd, and Gary Cole in the 74th minutes.

The following members of Taiwan's World Cup squad played in that match:

Goalkeeper Cheung-sun Chen, centre back Chen Sing, midfielder Tsou-fu Chow and Shien-wu Jong, right striker Juih-tsou Lo, and central striker and captain Kuo-chi Chang.

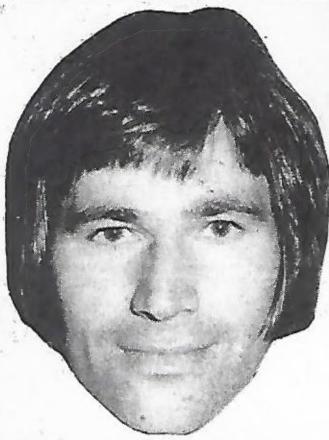

Centre back Chen Sing marshalled a strong defence which held on admirably until Tony Cumming scored with a speculative shot from the wing.

The match featured the combination of Eddie Krncevic and Ken Boden as central strikers — a combination that I always felt could have been devastating had it been persevered with. Krncevic flicked down the high balls and Boden pounced on them on the ground. Unfortunately, as far as I remember, that combination was never tried again.

Taiwan's squad also includes four members of the Taipeh City Bank team which Australia beat 7-1 in Taipei in 1978.

They are left winger Deng-chyan Duh, mid-fielders Deng-shang Duh, and Jian-jeng Yu and striker Seen-ur Chang who scored the Bank's only goal.

Eddie Krncevic got five for Australia, the other two coming from Tony Henderson and Gary Cole.

Lou Kastner — could have been Socceroos' No. 1

Had it not been for his wedding and two broken fingers, Lou Kastner of Preston-Makedonia now may have been entering his second decade as goalkeeper of the national team.

That good pair of hands to which he refers so often with pride would have served Australia well. At 32 he still is all class — just ask Ken Boden, John Kosmina, Murray Barnes and the other Socceroos of Sydney City Hakoah, who observed his brilliance last week.

Kastner saved a penalty by Boden and made many other saves in his career. He was nevertheless 24, but coach Eddie Thomson was moved to say afterwards that Kastner was among the finest goalkeepers in Australia.

"Soccer Action" awarded its first 10-point ratings of the season to Kastner and to Hakoah's Joe Watson for their performances in that match.

During his 16 years of senior football — I don't know of a longer-serving goalkeeper at top level in Victoria — there have been many such performances.

I remember him winning a State League Cup final for George Cross against Hakoah virtually single-handedly. And he was the star of the George Cross team that held Melbourne to a scoreless draw in an Ampol Cup final, paving the way for a 2-1 victory in the replay. Featuring Steve Blaszczak, Joe Parkman, David Cumming, Joe Szabo and Ian McCarthy, that Melbourne team was no pushover.

He served George Cross with distinction from the age of 16 until 1978. He often has represented Victoria and he helped Makedonia win the State League championship — but circumstances worked against him at Socceroo level.

Rasic

By the time he was given his first goal for Victoria under-coach Rale Rasic in 1969, Kastner already had played for the State under 14, 16 and 18 teams.

Rasic picked Kastner to keep goal against NSW in Sydney. NSW had a hell of a team at the time, and the 4-1 result was not unexpected. "Adrian Alston got a couple and Baartz, Warren and Abonyi gave us a lot of trouble, but I saved quite a few," Kastner remembers.

He must have played well, for it was after this game that national coach Joe Vlasits picked Kastner for the national squad.

Ron Corry was the No. 1 choice at the time. It was Vlasits who played and Kastner who sat on the bench during the three-match series against Greece in Sydney, Brisbane and Melbourne.

Kastner was all set to issue a strong challenge to Corry in the final game in Melbourne — but it was not to be.

Vlasits had said he would be used Kastner and a couple of other Victorian players in the Melbourne match but during training in Brisbane, Kastner broke two fingers.

His first chance had slipped away.

But Kastner recovered in time to be included in the World Cup squad for a qualifying tournament in Seoul against Japan and South Korea.

Again he sat on the bench as Corry played in the two victories and two draws with which Australia qualified for the tournament.

The Socceroos never had to travel to Mozambique and Israel for further qualifying matches against Rhodesia and Israel.

Kastner may have been given his chance in one of those games, but his wedding took preference.

He and his bride Margaret had arranged the wedding date well in advance, not knowing that the Socceroos would be playing against Rhodesia at the time.

Fraser in

Jim Fraser was called into the squad to replace Kastner in 1970. Fraser had played in the next World Cup qualifying series, four years later.

"I was contacted by the ASF a few times afterwards, just to tell me to kill it in case . . . the usual thing, you know, but unfortunately I never got another chance in the national squad," Kastner says.

Kastner's State games ended ingloriously after Victoria's visit to New Caledonia in 1975. He and a couple of other players sneaked out after curfew one night, and afterwards he was not selected again.

But he played seven games for Victoria — including the 2-1 victory over Bristol Rovers in 1974.

As a junior State representative, he and Polonia's Mike Olinowski, now player-coach of Ardeer, stood out among a rather nondescript lot while the older and more stolid all-blazoned because of players like Dino De Marchi, Attila Abonyi, Billy Vojtek, Mike Mandalis, Andy Kazi and Henry Surma.

Kastner was born at Fuchsmühl, near Nuremberg in

LOU KASTNER: 16 YEARS AT THE TOP

By LAURIE SCHWAB

Ken Boden — Kastner saved his penalty last week.

West Germany. He played with one of Nuremberg's junior teams as an inside left, "I scored in a few goals."

"I had a good ground left foot."

So he had a good grounding in soccer when he arrived in Australia with his parents at the age of 13, in 1961.

He met Hans Hinze, who had just joined George Cross' under 16s and who would later play for Kastner-Austria, and so Lou went down to George Cross as well.

He was the youngest player in the team.

After a couple of games on the forward line, Kastner was shifted into goal because the team had no other suitable goalkeeper. He did so well there that he hasn't moved out again since.

It wasn't long before he was promoted to captaincy of the under 16s, even though he was only 14 years old and barely able to speak English.

The following year, at the age of 15, he was in the reserves, and on the bench of the senior team. At the age of 16, he played three senior games, standing in for Eddie Azzopardi who had fallen out with the committee.

But his chances came too spasmodically. When Mike de Bruyckere, the former Wilhelmina and Lions star, became coach of George Cross, young Kastner was just about ready to ask for a transfer.

After all, the club had an abundance of goalkeepers — John Docherty, Frank Peter, Eddie Azzopardi and Mike de Bruyckere chose Kastner ahead of those three and it was that same year, 1969, that he progressed to Rale Rasic's Victorian team.

No coaches

Kastner speaks from experience in saying that there is a drastic shortage in Australia of coaches who are able to teach goalkeepers.

"This is particularly bad for juniors, as they cannot develop properly without the right coaching," he says.

"The junior coaches, the goalkeepers are the ones who are usually pushed aside. They do their laps and then they have shots fired at them, that's all.

"No-one really knows when it's a goalkeeper's ball, although they call it all the time."

"A goalkeeper is not just a shot-stopper."

"He's got to be alert all the time. He's got to know a lot more about football than people seem to think. He has to be able to read the play so that he can anticipate what the danger is going to come from."

"He has to know who the skillful players are — the ones who will try to chip you, or to take you on, and he has to know which players have the strongest shots for they are the ones who will hit the unexpected long-range ones."

"You have to know when and how to come out, and how to force a player wide. It's not always luck when the ball strays to your leg after you've spread yourself."

"Many of my best saves have been simply forcing a player to miss by closing him down quickly and making him shoot in a hurry."

Kastner says that Ken Wagstaffe, who was player-coach good goalkeeper's coach. He also learned from de Bruyckere and Eddie Azzopardi, the man he succeeded at George Cross.

As a kid in Germany, he admired the great Tilkowski and Yashin. He also had respect for Norm Hobson at George Cross.

"I didn't model myself on anyone," he says. "My game is my own."

"I have a good pair of hands. I have confidence in them and I always try to catch the ball. (He caught that penalty against Hakoah)."

"Do what's necessary and I try to be as safe as possible, but I can also be spectacular if necessary."

Only opinion'

Kastner intends to take up coaching when he stops playing — but that won't be for quite while. He's feeling sharp after a recent form lapse.

"Soccer's been good to me," he says. "I couldn't just quit and it's cold; it's only fair that I stick out and go back home, so I'll take up coaching."

He gained his preliminary coaching qualification under Len McKendry and now plans to do a senior course.

"It opens up your eyes to all the things you never have seen before in soccer," he says.

We talk about how much influence a coach really has — about what percentage he can take credit for, as compared with the players.

"Soccer is a game of opinion, and so coaching is a matter of opinion," he offers, cautiously.

"A good coach is one who can get through to his players psychologically and make them want to play for him, but of course a lot is left to the players themselves. They must shoulder most of the responsibility."

"The players are what football is all about. No-one goes to the ground to watch the coaches."

Kastner rates Ken Wagstaffe as the best coach he's served under. "He was professional in every way, he supported his players to the hilt and of course he played himself, which helped a lot."

"His training was enjoyable and productive. When he came in 1976, George Cross was last. We had lost the first six games. But while he was here, we lost only one game and finished third."

Kastner also rates John Gardiner an excellent coach. Gardiner, as player-coach led Essendon Croatia to championships and Cup victories. He now plays sweeper for leading State League team Ajax where he also helps Bobby McLachlan with the coaching.

During Kastner's recent slumber, it was Gardiner who took him out for extra training sessions. They both live at Noble Park and they have been good friends for a long time. Gardiner too played for George Cross.

Injured

During his loss of form, Kastner was criticised heavily by Makedonia coach Brian Edgley and by sections of the Press. It was an unsettling time for him.

He admits he played badly at the time, but an injury was at least part of the reason.

Kastner and Rob Cullen collided at training, resulting in both players requiring stitches — Kastner to the leg and Cullen to the hip.

Kastner's injury became infected and he had to have surgery through his skin to his gut.

He played on with painkilling injections, but ever-conscious of perhaps aggravating the injury, he was unable to give his best.

"We were playing reasonably well at the time, which meant I had little to do. That's always hard for a goalkeeper. You make one mistake in that situation and you cop twice as much blame."

Makedonia keepers agree it is harder to play in a winning team than a losing one. Kastner is no exception.

"In the State League, I'd have maybe four or five touches a game. You have to very hard to hold your concentration."

"At the moment, we're under a lot more pressure, which means I'm in the play a lot more. That's easier for a goalkeeper, but of course I'd prefer us to be winning."

Legal action

Kastner had to go to court and stand out of soccer for six months in order to get away from George Cross and eventually into the big time of Philips League soccer.

George Cross arranged a testimonial match for Kastner in 1976 in appreciation of his long service to the club.

Former team mates John Sanchez, Archie Campbell and Bobby McLachlan all made "stern" cracks for this match, in which the George Cross team beat a Hellas-Alexander combination.

But Kastner was unsettled even then. The Philips League was due to start the following season, and that's where Kastner wanted to play.

He stayed with George Cross in 1977 however, and with Billy Wilkinson at the helm as player-coach, the Cross won the State League championship.

But this was the end of Kastner's association with the club. In his fight to get a transfer, he went to the Supreme Court halfway through 1978. The matter was settled out of court, however, and George Cross agreed to let Kastner go for a low transfer fee.

Western Suburbs will win promotion to the Victorian State League in 1981!

That is the confident claim of Suburbs' player-coach Billy Vojtek and the club committee.

Western Suburbs was formed in 1969 when the then District League club West Sunshine amalgamated with Deer Park ICI which was in the Metropolitan Fourth Division at the time.

West Sunshine was founded late in 1886 by Dimitrios Fiteris who asked estate agent Emmanuel Parisis to become president. Parisis is the present secretary of the club.

In 1968, the club signed former Hellas goalkeeper Savvas Kagioglou as player-coach and won the West Division of the District League.

When the new Western Suburbs ICI was formed it was an immediate success, finishing second in Fourth Division, winning promotion to Second Division in 1970 and jumping up to First Division three years later.

George Makkousis was the club's star during these years. A brilliant forward, midfielder or defender, he was acknowledged as one of the finest players in the Metropolitan League and his reputation was such that Sunshine City signed him to help get into the State League.

Suburbs achieved its greatest honour in 1979 when it won the First Division championship and headed for State League.

One of the legendary figures of Greek soccer, Mimis Papaiouannou, was a guest player in 1979 and an influential member of the club's championship winning outfit.

But Suburbs found survival in State League ranks a rough assignment.

Coach Jim Pyrgolios left after half the season and was replaced by Jimmy Kondilis.

Steve Carr from Hellas and Kit Greek from Albion Rovers were bought to bolster the side but neither player could do much to stop the slide.

Relegation to First Division was a shattering blow.

Perhaps history will record that one of the hallmarks of success, resilience, is one of the major features of Suburbs.

The club took stock of its situation. Morale was low, some players were unhappy. But the master stroke occurred last December when Suburbs appointed former Australian international Billy Vojtek as player-coach.

Vojtek went about his task of building a championship winning side by signing Mick Klarin, Andy Segi, Ian McCarthy and Marcus Karabatos.

Now Suburbs are acknowledged as a major threat for the First Division title.

Supporters have come back to the club and the spirit is high.

The committee plans to improve the playing surface of its home ground in Ralph Street, Sunshine and new clubrooms are being built at a cost of $80,000.

Western Suburbs will be a power in Victorian soccer.

The club's destiny is in the hands not only of the players but also the dedicated, hard-working committee members who are committed to restoring the club to its former State League status.

This is the team of Vermont soccer club, founded in 1977 and promoted the same year from the Cosmopolitan League to the Victorian District League Fourth Division.

The following year it was promoted to the Third Division and in 1980 stepped up to the Second Division.

Players backed Vest to the end

By CRAIG MACKENZIE

Alan Vest

Vest brought $60,000 in transfer money to KB during his stay.

His successor, Baartz, has an illustrious playing career. He scored 18 goals in 48 full international appearances for Australia.

Baartz met with the players and held his first training session on Wednesday night last week.

He told the players he respected their loyalty to Vest and would be happy to receive just half of such loyalty. Baartz isn't being paid for taking over on a caretaker basis.

And if the right man comes along to fill the full-time manager-coaching post then Baartz will step down.

"I stressed to the players that I am here to help them and we have to get down to the business of playing football," said Baartz.

The success of KB ensures the success of soccer in Newcastle. On a larger scale a successful club contributes to the success of Australian soccer.

"I can't criticise Alan Vest because he did a tremendous job for Newcastle."

"It was Alan who recommended me for the job as caretaker and to my knowledge he left on good terms with the board of directors."

"Like all towns there were people here who had a lot to say about Alan and the way the team was going."

"But they are entitled to their opinions. Maybe Alan listened to them more than he should have. I don't really know about that."

"All I know is that we have to knuckle down to do the best we can till the end of the season."

Interest in the "Soccer Action" — Canon Photo of the Year contest has reached an all-time high, with entries pouring in every week.

Janko lives in the suburb of Para Hills.

Details of the Canon competition, and this week's selected entry, appear on page 12.

MARTON THE MAGICIAN

NSW STATE LEAGUE

Striker Dez Marton played the role of 'Merlin the Magician' for St. George in the NSW State League, scoring two goals in the Saints' 3-0 win over Manly.

With the score level 0-0 eleven minutes into the second half, St. George were badly in need of the wizardry that Marton has provided so many times this season.

St George manager Frank Arok sent him on despite a foot injury and exactly 15 minutes later he hopped off the field a hero, with two goals beside his name.

The amazing thing about Marton's performance was that he's still on the mend from a broken bone in his right foot.

Not long after he went on as replacement he went down heavily holding his right foot, but got up and kept going.

In the 66th minute he found himself clear with only the goalkeeper to beat and he made no mistake to post St. George's first goal.

Four minutes later he poached a second goal from a free kick from a seemingly harmless cross into the area.

He was replaced one minute later to the rousing applause of the appreciative 1247 crowd.

Midfielder and captain Peter Stone made sure of the victory with an 81st minute goal when he came in with a neat far post header.

Referee Arthur Owens sent off Manly right-back Keith Falconer 14 minutes from time for a foul after he had received a yellow card seven minutes earlier.

Riverwood scored a 3-1 win over Parramatta in heavy conditions at Hurstville Oval, with Seruf Kumsuz, John Lee and replacement forward Alan Fisher grabbing Riverwood's goal.

Parramatta opened the scoring after 12 minutes when Ken Crawford netted, but Riverwood came back to lead 2-1 at half time.

Bankstown had also gone to the lead early in their game with Sutherland, only to eventually lose to the Sharks 2-1.

Greg King scored Bankstown's goal with Tony Bush equalising for Sutherland in the 31st minute and Nigel Groome scoring the winner six minutes after half time.

Polonia scored a 1-0 win over Auburn in an even match with the winner coming from Polonia's Polish forward Henryk Sobczyk early in the first half.

Canterbury-Marrickville shared the points with North Sydney in a game where the defences dominated the game.

In the first minute Mick Dale headed off the North Sydney goal line with his keeper well beaten.

Ross Brown should have put Canterbury ahead in the 30th minute but his shot went high over the cross-bar.

Ali Elzeini, the Canterbury keeper, did well to save a long shot from John Morsello in the 60th minute.

Canterbury were ahead at the 78th minute when Neil Williams tapped the ball in after the North Sydney goalkeeper had fumbled a shot from Lakis Georgiou.

Four minutes later North Sydney equalised when Tom Steven sent a high ball into the penalty area for Shane Wilson to head into the net.

Adelaide City coach Bob

D'Ottavi almost blew it against Canberra City.

He made two ill-timed subsitions in the second half and it exploded in his face when

goalkeeper Peter Marshall

a collision with Canberra midfielder Duncan Cole.

Defender Bugsy Nyskobus

took over from Marshall and it did not look good for the Adelaide outfit.

Not only did it have to play with a makeshift goalkeeper

but it was one man short.

But ironically Canberra had which attacked vigorously until that incident, made only one more threatening forward move resulted in a booking for John O'Shea who charged dangerously at Nyskobush.

Adelaide City however snapped out of a tentative period and grabbed the only goal of the match just 25 seconds from the end.

Gary Marocchi, who had been ineffective since coming on for Manou in the second half, floated a superb near post free kick and Jones flicked it past Steve Heskowski for an excellent goal.

Canberra could consider itself unlucky because it played intelligently and upset Adelaide City with close marking and aggression.

Tony Brennan was in good form up front while Cole was a force in midfield.

Brennan could have put Canberra in the lead in the game when he ripped past John Perin but his shot for close range was cleared off the line by Bugsy Nyskobus before the Marshall incident.

Canberra's occasional opportunity came in the first half when Dan McLaren hit a stinging ground shot which Marshall turned around the post for a corner kick.

However Adelaide City had the best chance of the match in the 23rd minute when first John Nyskobus then David Mitchell missed in front of an open goal.

Referee Rossit had a busy afternoon booking six players — Ian Purdie, McLaren, John O'Shea, Cole and Brennan for Canberra, and he also took Brian Northcote's number.

McLaren was replaced before half time by Isaac Farrell, possibly because Canberra coach George Murray did not want to run the risk of McLaren collecting another caution which would have ruled him out of Canberra's Philips Cup match against Olympic the following day.

The match began to sour for the home side when D'Ottavi replaced Chris Manou with Marocchi.

Manou, a tall, powerful teenager had done much of the hard work in the midfield and when he came off Adelaide City never again looked a force in the midfield.

Marocchi was rarely sighted until he took the free kick which led to the goal.

The second substitution was forced upon D'Ottavi because Northcote's fitness had deteriorated.

Nyskobus had a back condition which does not allow him to play at top pace for a whole match.

Will Martyn ever be 'discovered'?

It is a sort of thoughtless action which is slowly eroding

the confidence of this brilliant goalkeeper who more than any other player in Australia has reason to complain about some shabby treatment.

But of course he won't.

That's not his style.

Crook has been in and out of several Australian squads that he could be forgiven for thinking that he may never be called to play for the Socceros again.

His exclusion from the team which placed Taiwan was even more perplexing because of Australia's hopeless position in the World Cup.

It simply made no sense to leave him out in preference to Maier and Woodhouse who both must be blamed for contributing to Australia's virtual elimination.

The question is not whether Crook would have fared any better but why he has not been given the chance.

Crook has not played for Australia since the 1-2 defeat to Northern Ireland in Adelaide last year. Crook excelled in that game as the press and Rudi Gutendorf acknowledged, but was almost immediately dismissed by the then coach.

Gutendorf did not select him for the November World tour

but Crook was told to maintain his fitness during the off season in case he was needed

as a replacement.

Despite only having a few months of joining the team, he literally ground himself into the team with his exhausting training.

The result was that he injured discs in his back and until late January was in danger of missing a large part of the 1981 season.

But he made a remarkable recovery, missing only the first game of the season against Brisbane City.

His form this year has again been exceptional. But it has not been easy playing in a dispirited team like West Adeluide.

He has been often called upon to carry the defence. It is pointless to cite examples

because he does it very well.

It is just that it is so disruptive to read a column by Maher in Soccer World in which he says that several goalkeepers

(he doesn't name them) mentioned in recent weeks as possible candidates for his position will always remain that until they become more consistent.

He also suggests that these goalkeepers do not have what is required (he doesn't say what precisely) to be successful at international level.

One might assume he includes Crook in those statements. If he does, his arguments are as solid as a cardboard castle.

Crook's greatest quality has been his consistency. Proof of that is that he has been chosen as Soccer Action's goalkeeper of the year for each of the four completed PSL seasons.

And as for his record at international level, Crook has played six times for Australia including two games as substitute, conceding five goals.

Branko Buljevic was dropped to the bench to make room for Cummings who had scored six goals against the reserves mid-week.

The big difference between Olympic and Hellas was speed.

Olympic was faster in most positions — faster in closing down, faster in tackling, faster on its feet.

Hellas was unable to come to grips with Olympic's two flankers, Graham Jennings and Derek Laing, and certainly had no answer to midfielder Peter Katholos.

When Hellas attacked, all the front men pushed up hard against the Olympic defence, with no one hanging off. That usually meant in Olympic clearing the ball into no-man's land where it was converted into an Olympic attack.

The goalpost robbed Olympic of what would have been a deserved victory.

With Olympic attacking relentlessly during the second half Ken Wilson's sliding kick from a cross by substitute Andy Scott hit the bottom of the post.

Earlier, central striker Mark Kosous had been taken off by Tommy Docherty for missing a series of easy scoring chances.

First Kosous shot straight at goalkeeper Peter Laumets on a breakaway run and then he shot across goal from close range.

Scott played well as Kosous' replacement but Hellas also had a chance to win in a heart-stopping finish.

A through ball by Alan Evans, the man-of-the-match, served Woodin into the clear but his strong shot was deflected one-handed by keeper Peter Wilson.

Wilson made another excellent save in palming a shot by Steve Blair onto the bar and a header by substitute Branko Buljevic from Woodin's cross was too high.

Woodin started well then faded away, but was seen at his best late in the game when he switched to the left flank from where he drove in some dangerous crosses.

It was Hellas that took the lead through Evans in the 23rd minute.

Shots by Cummings and Blair were blocked before Evans put away the second rebound.

The lead lasted only five minutes.

George Christopoulos stopped Kosous with a desperate tackle while lying on the ground, but the ball then was played out to Peter Raskopoulos who drove it past the crossbar.

But because most forward balls were directed at Alan Evans, Woodin didn't get much of the play.

Obviously these two, in conjunction with coach John Margaritis and the midfielders, must work out a rehearsed

There were reports from Sydney on Monday morning that English club Preston North End was offering to buy Tommy Docherty's contract from Sydney Olympic for $50,000.

After the match against Hellas at Olympic Park however, Docherty said nothing about the alleged offer.

In fact, in one of his newspaper columns, he had said a few days earlier that he had no intention of leaving Olympic.

His success at Olympic cannot be denied on the evidence of his team's exciting performance against Hellas — all action, all attack, all commitment.

And what about Peter Katholos? What a cultured player he is!

Docherty admitted after the game that all he needs is a reliable goalscorer (who doesn't?).

Such a player would have assured an Olympic victory, for Ken Wilson and Mark Kosous between them had the chances to win the match three times over.

Grant Turner of the New Zealand national team was to be Olympic's man but now Docherty is not longer interested.

"The boy has no ambition," he said after the game.

Apparently Turner declined to join immediately, but offered to come to Olympic next season.

Turner, who plays for Gisborne City, said on Monday that another reason for not wanting to leave New Zealand was that his wife, Rachel, had just started school and that he and his wife Lyn thought a shift to Australia would be too much of an upheaval.

New Turner is considering going to England at the end of the season to try out with Doncaster Rovers.

Steve Woodin, Turner's New Zealand national team striking partner, made his debut for Hellas in this match and impressed with his speed and aggression.

But because most forward balls were directed at Alan Evans, Woodin didn't get much of the play.

Obviously these two, in conjunction with coach John Margaritis and the midfielders, must work out a rehearsed plan to get the ball into the Jones' area to the unmarked Peter Jones who had no difficulty in shooting past the overworked Crook.

This in turn gave West Adelaide a chance to get into the match. Their efforts however produced nothing, and until midway through the second half the score line stayed at 1-0 with both sides locked into a centre pitch struggle.

In the 74th minute Blacktown increased the lead when Brian O'Donnell blasted a free past the wall.

Crook managed to parry the shot but Jovan Djordjević was on the spot to slot it home after Paul Burrows had tried and missed.

This must have been the catalyst that Blacktown needed for it certainly got its act together. The West Adelaide defence was clearly feeling the pinch and it was probably as much of their own forwards inability to hold the ball for any length of time as the Blacktown pressure.

Canberra's confident, J.U.S.T. to avoid drop

By CRAIG MACKENZIE

The air of confidence around Bruce Stadium won't be shattered when Brisbane City meets Canberra on Sunday.

This is the best Canberra outfit since the inception of the PSL in 1977!

Manager-coach George Murray has produced an organised, disciplined side and by his own admission the only major flaw is in the finishing department.

Tony Brennan has speed to burn and a nose for goal but lacks maturity as a finisher.

If Brennan finished off three quarters of his chances he'd be heading the PSL top scorers' list.

In Ian Gibson, Murray boasts one of the best signings of the season.

Gibson's vision and disposal has created many openings for Canberra up front and he should give Bruce Stadium City coach George Putter plenty to worry about on Sunday.

Stark may be used to avert Brisbane City's aerial threat from tall strikers Paul Wilkinson and Barry Kelso.

With efficient sweeper Terry Byrne behind him Stark should have the confidence to take on Brisbane's tall timer and cut it down to size.

The Brisbane boys boast a fine goals record, a testament to the organisational qualities of sweeper Jimmy Dunne, and excelling in his first PSL season.

But not even the experienced Dunne will be able to keep the rampaging Canberra attackers at bay and Murray's Maestros can continue their challenge for their first major PSL honour at City's expense.

I can remember when Canberra commonly was acknowledged as the best inter-passing, possession outfit in the land.

Well while Marconi has slipped Adelaide City has risen to take over the label of a great passing side and at Marconi Stadium on Sunday I think Bob D'Ortavio's boys can record one of their best wins of the season.

Everyone seems to be espousing the fine developing qualities of young Adelaide City striker David Mitchell.

I expect Mitchell to add to his rapidly growing reputation with another top class performance against Marconi.

But there's another City youngster who impresses me greatly — Tony Brennan.

Marconi is full of ideas and takes up dangerous positions in the area. I think that D'Ortavio can look forward to big things from this youngster. Indeed, when you look at Mitchell, Menou and Charlie Valani, the future looks exceedingly bright for City.

Few top class sides in Australia can boast three youngsters as regular first team members.

Footscray J.U.S.T. won't get relegated and will take at least a point from Sunday's Sydney Cup game against Wollongong.

Did I really write that? Hang on a minute what's going wrong here?

Just the other week I was talking about J.U.S.T. being doomed. I also mentioned two Victorian State League clubs so the need to play with five at the back and three, sometimes four players in midfield no longer exists.

If it's any consolation to Wollongong, it won't be the only side to fall foul of revitalised J.U.S.T.

I've tipped Blacktown to beat unsettled Newcastle at Gabbie Stadium on Sunday.

Blacktown striker Paul Burrows is one of a growing band of former Newcastle players keen to show KB that it made a mistake in getting rid of them.

Sydney Olympic should beat Preston Makedonia at Pratten Park on Sunday.

I'm bitterly disappointed

Canberra striker Tony Brennan. His speed makes him a fearsome opponent.

Makedonia on the way back

Why only at home? You've been losing away from home with a more defensive attitude, so perhaps that attitude doesn't suit the team.

"Maybe you're right, maybe we should just play our natural game away from home, there's always complete silence. You look to the ref and you wonder whether he's really a referee."

Despite its indifferent results in recent weeks, Makedonia is potentially a great team, says Kastner.

"We're not chasing and tackling as much as before — probably because we're a bit downhearted at the moment. But we have to pull ourselves together again. A few wins will make all the difference."

"We've also had injury problems. Last year you couldn't have imagined Makedonia without George McMillan and Gary Ward up front. But McMillan had his hamstring problem, and Ward broke his leg again, so we haven't had them together or the pitch all year. George is back now, but Gary looks like being out all year."

A farce

Kastner is as disappointed as anyone else in Australia's World Cup failure.

"It was a complete farce against New Zealand," he says.

"It disappointed everyone."

"I think we had the players to do well but it looked as if they didn't really want to play, or maybe they just froze on the day."

"Against Indonesia they didn't play well either, even though they won 2-0."

"It's easy to blame the coach — and after two and a half years he should at least have had a settled team — but the players were at fault too."

"However, bowing out at this stage may have been a blessing in disguise. We may have gone to Spain and made complete fools of ourselves."

"Now, with the new youth players, we've got four years to prepare a young, settled team for the next World Cup."

"We've got to take a good long look at the game. It's not only money that makes things click."

"I'd like to see the States working in closer harmony. There's still too much jealousy among them."

Most soccer fans have shifted their expectations to the national youth team but Kastner wants them not to expect too much.

"I haven't seen the youth players from overseas, but at 19 most of them would be full professionals, so I can't see our boys doing much good against them — especially not against England and Argentina which are in our group for the youth finals in October."

"I don't think we'll make the semis, but the tournament will be good experience for our players."

He has great admiration for the best of the young Socceroos.

"Steve Blair is probably the best stopper in Australia already," he says, "and David Mitchell is a good striker. John Little of Makedonia is underrated; he's a good midfielder with a nose for goal and I think he's definitely a player of the future. Then there's the Newcastle pair, Grant Storey and Howard Tredinnick — both very good players."

Outside soccer, Kastner enjoys a game of tennis, a round of golf, and a bet on the horses. He works for IBM, where he's the stock room controller.

Lee and wife Margaret have two children — Lee-Anne, 8, and Bradley, 4.

No, Bradley won't be a goalkeeper!

"He's going to be a star striker," says Kastner. "It's easier. You get more praise and less kicks!"

Hakoah flexes its muscles

HAKOAH 2 (French, Webster) CROYDON 2 (I. Loughnane, Wassell)

HAKOAH: Fryer 2 - Geddy 8 - McNall 7, Doosen 7 (inj. Nagy 65th), Hannah 8, Rooney 7 - Allison 5, Trebil 3, Kent 7 - Webster 7, Mitten 6.

CROYDON: Keogh 6 - Brown 8, Pongho 7, McCombe 8, Hobson (inj. Wade 30th) - Spink 6, Smith 7, Howarth 6 - Wright 6, I. Loughnane 6, Wassell 8.

Middle Park no longer resembles a slaughter house with the carcasses of Hakoah players strewn across the field at the end of a State League game.

"We have been regarded as a team which you can rough-up for far too long," said Hakoah secretary Kurt Debris.

"But we surprised Croydon because now Hakoah tackles hard and can't be brushed aside."

Hakoah also is prepared to take the fight to its opponents.

Colin Allison gave evidence of this latest development when he squared up to Croydon midfielder Johnny Howarth. But not for long.

Graham French gave Hakoah a one goal half-time lead when he toe-poked the ball against the inside of the upright and across goal to hit the net in the opposite corner.

State League top scorer Ian Loughnane levelled in the second half then new signing from Doveton Kim Wassell thundered home a scorching drive from a tight angle to give the visitors the lead.

Thirty seconds later Sean Rooney's shot was too hot for Sean Keogh to handle competently and Stan Webster followed in to square up the contest.

NEW MEN FOR FRANKSTON

JUVENTUS 3 (Incantalufo, Ristovski, Sannipoli) FRANKSTON 2 (Egan 2).

JUVENTUS: Pantos 1 - Curcio 2, D'Andrea 6, Tarczynski 6, Gerasim 5 (Tieachan 55th), Pagan 9, Sannipoli 8, Werner 8, Smith 7 - Ristovski 6, Incantalufo 7.

FRANKSTON: Gilbert 9 - Thomas 5 (Friede 2), Adams 6, Cooper 5, Ormond 5 (Campbell H.T. 4) - Golby 6, Holford 8, Buchanan 6, Stewart 5 - Egan 8, Burroughs 6.

This was the straw which broke the Frankston camel's back.

That camel has been through hell in the last two seasons.

He had to bump around a group of players diminishing in quality and depth.

Even camels have principals, the people at Centenary Park who look after their camel have told him that he soon will be carrying youth and quality in the form of overseas striker Bill Riley.

The youth is Robbie Reader, Mark Watson and Keith Towers.

And the Baysiders are interested in Scottish player Charlie Hendry who signed with Footscray J.U.S.T. in 1979.

Frankston was two goals up at half time thanks to Charlie Egan catching Juventus on the break and Dave Gilbert who stopped Juve grubbing five goals!

But Juventus kept slicing the Frankston defence to ribbons and Lou Sannipoli notched the winner when he headed in from Sandro Penzo's near post glancing header.

The camel wasn't around at the end of the match. He'd had the long trek back to Frankston after Mendo Ristovski evened the scores in the 68th minute.

He won't be bumping Norrie Campbell and Dave Cooper around any longer.

Campbell will help with the reserve team coaching and Cooper's on a free.

POLONIA STRENGTHENS ITS GRIP

The Victorian Leagues

middle. Darlington drew Steve Walker, and side footed the ball to Mike Valentine coming up fast on his right. Falcons left back Massimo tried desperately to intercept, but unfortunately he got the ball past him leaving Valentine with only the keeper to beat, but he shot weakly and Bill Whiteside was able to block the ball to safety.

Whiteside was having slightly the better of the midfield duels with Paddy McElhinney and Williams prominent, however, apart from a 35 metre shot from Jimmy Armstrong on the wide wing and a header from the same player, after good work by Van Baar and Williams which went over the bar, the solid back four of the visitors was always in control of the situation.

In the second half Falcons replaced Di Guillio, who had only been on the field for 12 minutes, with John Lucchesi, who immediately injected more life into their attack, and the Hillmen were forced into a number of desperate clearances to keep their goal intact.

As the game wore on, the younger Box Hill Players started to get on top, and only good defensive play by Walker and Grant Smart kept the Falcons in the game as the Hillmen built up the pressure.

A rasping shot by Greg McLeod was well anticipated by Whiteside, then a searching cross from the left by Roodhouse, eluded the keeper but Darlington and Donovan Lawler on the far post were unable to make contact, and Whiteside, recovering well, managed to push the ball over the line for a corner.

In the end both sides were happy to take away a point, though Box Hill must be hoping that its inability to capitalise on chances is only temporary.

RICHMOND 0 POLONIA 2 (Lekic, Marshall)

POLONIA: Dzielakowski, R. Liparski, Jaworski, S. Klein, P. Czapnik, Sekulski, Lekic, Marshall, Wallace (G. Garanski 6th), P. Czapnik, Sekulski, Lekic, Kryszak.

Polonia only took six minutes to hit the front.

A fine through ball by Richard Sekulski went to Brendan Lekic who beat two defenders then shot past Joe Kiss.

Richmond came back strongly but was thwarted by two top class saves by Leszek Kryszak.

Polonia increased its lead when Alex Marshall playing against his old side, went on a solo run, beat two defenders and the advancing Kiss to seal Richmond's fate.

Don't ask for where the bell tolls for the ring. It tolls for us.

Four Ringwood Wilhelmina gravediggers added to the work done by the Altona committee when it sacked John Payne.

Under Payne Altona drew with Croydon and Croatia. More importantly the side showed a fierce commitment and supreme effort. Without these two crutches Altona can't keep its feet in the State League.

Brian Thom turned the first clog in the sixth minute when he converted from the penalty spot after a kamikaze handball by an Altona defender.

The grave grew deeper in the second half when John O'Callaghan scored from point blank range after Dennis Masseni failed to cut out a far post cross.

Ian Greener and newcomer Brian Sinclair did their fair share of the shovel work by adding two more decisive goals.

Sinclair was on the books of English club Blackpool four years ago and played with St. George Budapest in Sydney in 1979.

Another overseas player, probably a striker, is expected to add to the revitalisation process at Jubilee Park in the near future.

Croydon and Ajax will stage a repeat performance of their thrilling 1981 Ampol Cup final when they meet at Croydon Park on Sunday.

State League leadership is the prize which the winner will claim.

Respective wingers, Kim Wassell of Croydon and Ajax's Bill Murray will try to get into one-on-one situations with their opposing full backs but the narrow confines of Croydon Park won't stop their cause.

Young Croydon full back Mark Brown pleased coach Bill McArthur against Hakoah on Saturday but lacks experience against a rugged, aggressive customer like Murray.

There will be no quarter asked and none given when Wassell meets Peter Lewis.

The battle should be "R" rated.

I can't split these sides even though Ajax boasts another addition to its foreign legion in Scottish newcomer Alan Bennett.

Ajax striker Gordon Wallace was injured against Croatia and unlikely to be at peak fitness for Sunday's game.

Big Gus McLeod carried an injury against Croatia. He won't be a hope of beating Steve McCombe in the air if he isn't fully fit.

Croatia shouldn't have too much trouble beating struggling Juventus at Olympic Park on Sunday.

Victorian State League with CRAIG MACKENZIE

No-one in his right mind could envisage Carl Gilder, Dave Brogan and Noel Mitten being held at bay here.

Juve might have a ton of heart but it's a few extra pounds of quality which is stopping coach Reno Viti from looking confident on match days.

At least Tony Heery should resume after missing Sunday's win against Frankston through injury.

And to and behold who should bob-up in the Juve line-up but the irrepressible Charlie Smith.

One of the most difficult sessions with the Jive committee have been sorted out. Maybe they are just in limbo until Charlie finds out whether the postman with the wages arrives in time now.

Northcote has picked up three points from its last two games but George Cross should change the Northerners record at John Cain Reserve on Saturday.

Bobby Toal gets better with every game, Jim Paparas is running into top form and Ged Bannon doesn't know how to put in a bad game.

Cross looks too tight at the back for Northcote and Toal and Co. should triumph.

At the start of the year I thought a game between Frankston and Doveton would be a real bone crunching affair with little between the sides.

But the Doves keep picking-up points as the Baysiders pick-up their sagging pride.

Tommy Robertson is the new first team coach at Frankston and he'll be looking for at least a point from the game.

If Paul Corke can keep Charlie Egan in check Frankston hasn't a chance.

A new era is about to be ushered in at Frankston. I expect to see a couple of promising youngsters in Sunday's starting line-up.

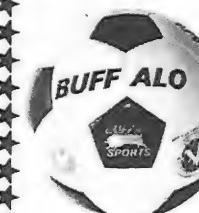

Hakoah won't have to play with five at the back against Altona at Kim Reserve on Sunday.

If the Hakoah players can cope with their re-organised formation they should pick-up a couple of points without too much difficulty.

Ringwood won't be an easy picking for Sunshine at Chaplin Reserve on Sunday.

But Sunshine imports Chris Taylor and Roger Bain have given the first team squad the quality and depth needed to mount a challenge for top four honours.

I think the Shiners can sneak home provided the shackles are tightly fixed around the legs of Ringwood newcomer Brian Sinclair.

Soccer symbolises the great contradictions of the human condition — joy and despair, love and hate, fame and obscurity, wealth and poverty.

So the players, if you like, a tightrope, high expectation, balancing precariously from one game to another, the first half to the second half, sometimes from one delicate touch of the ball, one fleeting glance at an opponent, one definite and incisive strike at goal.

For Croatia substitute Noel Mitten was the gap between joy and despair was narrowed in seconds as he found himself in special delight.

After scoring 34 league and cup goals in almost a season and a half with Croatia his form had nosedived a few days before this classy encounter when he was offered as a swap for Croydon's Dave Bergan.

Croatia refuses to admit that Mitten was bartered. Croydon claims otherwise.

Mitten answered in the only way possible, by opening up the race for the 1981 State League championship.

Croatia's finishing in recent weeks has been worse than second rate.

The trail strewn with golden opportunities gone begging grew longer after this match to accommodate two Brogan chances, and misses by Carl Gilder, Alan Kerr and Ken Murphy.

Brogan made a promising debut.

When referee Chris Bainbridge signalled for the end of Ajax's hopes Mitten was surrounded by young boys patting him on the back.

As he walked up the player race to the Croatia dressing room he was flanked on both sides by smiling faces and congratulatory shouts.

Like their lizard-like counterparts some of these supporters are noted chiefly for their ability to change their color to match their surroundings.

Mitten was their part-time hero.

Victorian Provisional League club Rosebud was formed in 1982 mainly by Dutchmen from a nearby migrant hostel. The foundation president was Arthur Brant, now a life member of the VPL. Thanks to the Flinders Council Rosebud has two of the finest pitches in the state and fine clubroom facilities. The club folded in the early 80's due to a lack of players but was reformed in 1987. Rosebud businessman Mike Forde has served as president for eight years. The Peninsula Cup is an annual feature of Rosebud's season. Frankston, Chelsea and Rosebud have won the cup three times each. This year, in the First Division of the Provisional League, Rosebud is in the middle of the table but only a handful of points separate the Buds from the top two sides.

PLAY WINNING SOCCER

THE BEST RANGE OF SOCCER BOOKS AROUND THE YOUNG SOCCER PLAYER

John M. White — Foreword by Eric Worthington

Soccer in Australia has increased in popularity at a tremendous rate in recent years. Each year more and more junior players register with the major soccer football associations in the city metropolitan areas. Country associations, too have become more numerous, though not enough to guarantee a high standard of play among the seniors who come up through the junior ranks. A sound knowledge of the basic soccer skills and an understanding of the system and tactics of the game, acquired at an early age is essential.

In this book I have attempted to set out what the junior player should know about these basic skills and techniques, and to show how he can go about mastering them. Each skill — kicking, trapping, passing and interpassing, heading, tackling, ball control and marking — is dealt with in turn, and the various ways of performing these skills are described in a few words and illustrated by a drawing. Action photographs of junior and senior matches in progress are also illustrate many of the movements being used in match play.

No book can take the place of experience gained through training sessions and match play. It can, however, do a lot to supplement the teaching of a coach, and can be invaluable as a reference for study in your spare time and as a guide in practising at home or with friends in the park or playground.
